Housing Forum

Many apartment residents have reached out to our office to share concerns. There is serious concern over rising rents, landlord intimidation and the safety and condition of some apartments and complexes. On Thursday, March 22, at 7 p.m., we will host a Housing Forum at St. Boniface Church's Assembly Hall. Residents will have the opportunity to hear about information and resources.

Rising rents are a huge concern for many. If rent is raised by less than 10 percent, you must receive a 30-day notice. If it is raised by more than 10 percent, you must get a 60-day notice. If you have specific questions regarding your situation, please contact the Fair Housing Foundation at fairhousingfoundation.com or by calling (800) 446-3247.

For issues with overcrowding or substandard conditions, please reach out to Anaheim Code Enforcement at (714) 765- 5158. Making a formal complaint allows the city to inspect within two to seven business days and will protect you if there's an issue of retaliation. You can be anonymous, but if there is an issue with overcrowding you must provide the exact address of where the suspected overcrowding is taking place.

If you notice any suspicious activity or have general concerns about safety in your neighborhood, please contact the Anaheim Police Department at (714) 765- 1900. Please know that you can be anonymous and will not be asked your citizenship status.

You can also reach out to any city department through AnaheimAnytime.net.

YOUR MAYOR PRO TEM

Mayor Pro Tem Jose F. Moreno represents District 3, the north-central part of the city. In addition to his service on council, he is a professor at California State University, Long Beach; President of Los Amigos of Orange County, a community group that serves people in need; and most importantly a husband and father to four daughters.

Host an Exchange Student

Our Sister City Commission is looking for Anaheim families to host exchange students from our sister cities. This commission expands and fosters relations with sister cities: Mito, Japan, Vitoria-Gasteiz, Spain and Pudong New Area, China. If you would like to be a host family, complete the following application.

Police Review Board

We're seeking your help shaping the future of community policing in Anaheim as part of enhanced civilian oversight of our police department. The city is seeking applicants to serve on the Police Review Board, a new oversight board set to convene in the coming weeks. The board will be made up of seven residents — six selected by districts and one at large. Selection will be made via lottery and requires applicants to successfully pass a background check and be willing to sign a confidentiality agreement. The Police Review Board will propose police policy recommendations to the city manager. Members, with support from Anaheim's independent police auditor, will be briefed on major incidents, publish statistical information and receive and respond to community complaints and concerns, among other responsibilities. The deadline to apply is March 23. If you want to learn more or apply, visit Anaheim.net/PRB.

Permit Parking

Parking is a challenge in many of our neighborhoods. After months of researching the issue, city staff recently briefed the City Council on new proposed guidelines, including: making all public streets eligible for permit parking; having Public Works approve permit parking petitions, instead of Council; expanding the size of permit parking districts; basing permits on number of bedrooms, whether in a house or apartment; leaving existing districts unchanged; and restricting parking for oversized and "for sale" vehicles to ensure space for residents.

A town hall on the proposed guidelines is set for March 13 at 6 p.m. at City Council Chambers. If unable to attend, you can complete an online survey at Anaheim.net/permitparking. Council is expected to consider the proposed recommendations on March 27.
