

At the request of the State of California Attorney General's office, the following revision should be incorporated on page 4.2-14 of the Draft EIR (deleted text shown as strike-through and added text shown in bold italics):

There are no established standards for determining a significant impact under CEQA. ~~However, the California Attorney General's office considered 100,000 tons per year as "relatively small".~~ Based upon the small amount of CO₂ emissions expected to be generated, it is concluded that the proposed project would not have a substantial effect on global warming. Therefore, this impact would be less than significant.
